No Time to Waste

THE CONSTITUTIONAL ARGU- dian Parliament will assemble for the immediate formation of a Liberal government is unanswerable. But there are prac-tical arguments as well. For during the next six weeks Canada must face and make a series of major decisions which a government re-jected at the polls has no right to make and, in fact, cannot possibly

To begin with, the nation's do-mestic affairs are in arrears for almost a full year. No budget had been introduced when the last Par-liament was dissolved. The annual appropriations of money-Parliament's supreme prerogative—had not been debated. No decisions of basic policy had been made, next federal government, whatever its political complexion, must confront an appalling accumulation of

But in addition to all this Canada is committed to a heavy schedule of international meetings which must deeply affect its whole future.

The Commonwealth trade and finance ministers will meet in London on May 13 to prepare for the GATT meeting in Geneva on May 16 when a world-wide re-assessment of tariffs will begin. On May 14 of tariffs will begin. On May 14 Canada must be represented at a special meeting of the United Nations to deal with its danger of financial bankruptcy. On May 22 the NATO allies will meet in Ottawa to consider defence problems. Before the end of May the new Canaon the nation for years to come? Should Canada be represented by a government which secured only a third of the vote last Monday? By a government which failed to deal with any basic problem and postponed everything after its previous defeat last June? By a government which has lost at least half its ministers, has lost all but a small remnant of support in the two largest provinces and a based mainly on the farm vote of the prairies?

Such a notion is constitutional nonsense but it is practical nonsense, too. If the accumulation of urgent domestic business is to be tackled successfully and if Canada is to be properly represented in many international decisions, a new many international decisions, a new government must be erected at the earliest possible moment. Poor Rating for TV Ratings

ONCE MORE THE METHOD BY which television program ratings are compiled has come under heavy fire from a subcommittee of the United States House of Represensatives. One member of the subcommittee declares they are a sham.

Mr. Leroy Collins, president of the National Association of Broad-casters, has warned his colleagues in the industry that rating services are "woefully weak." They follow a procedure, he says, which takes "meager facts" and develops them "beyond any reasonable relation-ship" to the purpose of the surveys.

Unless they do a much better job of measuring audiences for specific programs, more government inter-ference will be inevitable, he be-has been able to congratulate itself on avoiding the economic errors and uncertainties which, in 1929, brought the pre-war economic system to disaster.

The Marshall Plan, the Common Market, foreign aid, international agencies of co-operation—the International Mone-Fund, and World Bank, the General Agreement on Trade and Tariffsall these innovations suggested that some log-jam in Western policy had been decisively broken and that fresh political and economic energies were being mobilized to produce a real working and productive version of the market

The prospect was exhilarating But now we have to ask ourselves whether it was not an illusion after all. Even before the Brussels breakdown, the new world was not looking quite so brave. Since General de Gaulle's exercise of his veto, there are growing reasons for wondering whether it is even really new.

For a year now, Per Jacobbson, no wild-eyed radical but the sober, conservative head of the IMF, has been reminding the West that the fundamental elements which led to the 1929 catastrophe are beginning to reappear.

EVER since 1947, the Western world round the world the income of primary producers had fallen sharply.

> Today, once more, the stimulus of reconstruction is long since spent, the boom has petered out in Britain and North America, while Western Europe shows the early symptoms of slackening steam. Above all primary incomes have been depressed now for a number of years and only economic aid, sustaining and supporting Western exports, has filled and masked the gap. Even where, as the American farmers, high support prices have sustained income, the threat to the market reappears in the form of huge surpluses.

These resemblances cannot be dismissed. An underlying precariousness of demand is weakening the thrust of the free world economy. But those who reject the risk of another 1929 argue that slackening demand and faltering markets do not present a comparable danger in 1963 simply because the knowledge, the policy and the instruments needed to deal with an incipient crisis exist today and did not exist in 1929.

One can easily agree that they were lacking in 1929. The nations reacted blindly, shoring up their own national in which the new world of young, poor, Europe defences and then standing by helpless hungry, needy states with all their un-The Great Depression became une as the tide of demand ebbed away, cute filled wants and necessities could be The Great Depression became unas the ude of demand ebbed away, cutments of effective demand sustaining months and leaving millions stranded old, satisfied markets of the West.

Knowledge, policy, methods—all have been radically transformed. To counter the slackening of demand within the developed Atlantic world, there is a growing awareness that governments can and must aim at something like a 4 per cent a year rate of growth.

Britain has its National Economic Development Council on the model of France's Planning Commission. The embers of the North Atlantic Council have formally accepted a 4 per cent rate of expansion as a long-term objective; their Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development exists as a joint instrument for working out its larger implications. Inside the European Economic Community, the Brussels Commission has taken the first steps towards the projection of growth rates for the Common Market as a whole. This is very far from the cluelessness and helplessness of 1929.

Moreover, the negotiations between Britain and the partners of the Common Market were constantly revealing glimp-ses of a tantalizing new vision—a vision filled wants and necessities could be to add up to a sustained Western policy brought in to redress the balance of the to raise the purchasing power and im-

The vision, the perspective, the possibilities exist. But what are we to say about the will to carry them through? In these conditions of potential reversion to older, narrower, angrier na-tionalist pretentions, the risks of 1929 come very close. OTTAWA -- While we await announcement of the military vote and a prospective increase of two or three in the Liberal strength in the new Commons, it seems clear that no matter how John Diefenbaker twists and turns he cannot long cling to the prime ministership.

He is entitled to call Parliament together as quickly as possible and seek a vote of confidence. He cites the precedent of 1925. But he overlooks the more recent precedent of 1957, when Prime Minister St. Laurent resigned in circumstances identical with those facing Mr. Diefenbaker today.

Besides, the similarity between 1925 and 1963 is more apparent than real. While Mackenzie King had only 101 members fol-lowing the 1925 election, compared with Meighen's 116 Tories, the third party of that day, the Progressives, had elected 24. The Progressives had supported King's minority Liberal government from 1921 to 1925, so

King really had a plurality.

Diefenbaker has no neo-Progressive group at his beck. The Socreds deserted him Feb. 5. Socred Leader Thompson has said he will not support Diefenbaker. And anyway, the combined Tory and Socred strength is a baker's dozen short of a majority, and short even of the Liberal plurality.

* * * Pearson, on the other hand, appears likely to be able to command a House majority on the strength of the pre-election pledge of NDP Leader Tommy Douglas to support a government based on a Commons plurality.

Practically speaking that meant the NDP would prevent the precipitate defeat of a Conservative or Liberal minority govern-

It is a hard blow to the NDP to find itself having to come to the aid of the Lib erals rather than the Conservatives. The Tories are only political foes, but the Lib-

Tories are only political foes, but the Liberals are mortal enemies. The only hope for the NDP ever to achieve political power lies in the destruction of the Liberal Party, But NDP parliamentarians are traditionally among the most responsible in the House. They could scarcely join with the Socreds to keep Diefenbaker in office, after the country of the scarce of t his crushing defeat and after their own denunciations of his policies and performance. However wryly, they must subordinate partisan interest to national interest. This will be made somewhat easier by knowledge that any party that lightly precipitates another election in the near future by defeating the Pearson govern-ment will reap the wrath of an electionsurfeited public.

Pearson and Douglas must now confer, A modus vivendi must be agreed upon. The great divisive issue between Grits and socialists, the question of nuclear arms, must be attacked frontally. While the kind of arms the services get is an executive design. cision, not requiring legislation, a nuclear treaty with the U.S. would require parliamentary ratification. And the question of warheads could be made the basis of a no-confidence motion by the opposition.

This is probably the only issue on the political horizon on which the NDP could not support the Grits. But among shattered Tories and western Socreds these likely would be enough support for the Liberals' nuclear pelicy to prevent the government's defeat—especially with another election as the fruit of such defeat, among some lexicographers that English is becoming a runaway language and may, cancer-like, destroy itself through uncontrolled apprehension stems from the prospect that slang, idioms, da-lects, colloquialisms and other corruptives will di-lute and contort the mean-Ing of words to the point that they lose their power

I am not enough of a dar to know whether such a threat actually exists. All I know is that two fello met on the street the other day and the following conversation ensued:

"You don't look so good, Harry."

"I don't feel so good, Sam."

"What seems to be the trouble?" "I'm afraid I played the fool last night." "You overindulged, did you? Had a drop too much?

"Yes, I was intemperate, I hit the sauce too hard."

"You were bending your elbow and you got a little too well oiled. Is that it, Harry?" "I sat down to wet my whistle and the next thing I knew I was feeling no pain." "In other words, you tied one on. You started out to lift a few and you ended up three sheets to the wind."

"Right, Sam. I was really sailing. I was flying."

"What you mean is, you were high. Or were you tight?"

"Both, Sam. I was high as a kite and tight as a tick."

"In that case, you must have been more than tipsy. You must have been stewed."
"Stewed to the gills, Sam. Also pickled,

"Harry, I'm beginning to think you were loaded."

"I had a load on, all right."
"I take it then that you were smashed.
You were potted, stoned and crocked."
"Let's face it, Sam, I was snockered. I was bashed, spiffed and looped.
"Putting it another way, you were snowed. You were biffed, tanked, boozed up and soaked."

"I had a snootful and a jag on."
"What you're trying to say is that you were blind."

'I was pie-eyed. I was blotto. I was stiff, bombed, soused, ossified, barrelled and gassed."

'Were you out like a light?' "No, but I was lit. Lit up like a church."
The two friends parted at this point and
Sam walked on down the street, muttering and shaking his heasd. "I wonder what was the matt Harry," he kept saying to himself.

nesday passed legislation to change the dollar bill and free 1,300.000,000 ounces of silver to barrels by the petroleum association.

For Canada as a whole, in cluding the small reserves in the east, proved reserves of crude oil did not show any significant increase last year over 1961.

Reserves for the whole country are estimated at 4.480,702.

In esday passed legislation to change the dollar bill and free 1,300.000,000 ounces of silver to tax associated with the Silver Purchase Act.

2. Repeal an anti-speculation tax associated with the Silver Purchase Act.

3. Allow the federal reserve system to issue $1 notes, which the treasury would use gradually to replace the present silver into speculators' melting pots.

The measure was passed 251 paper. Reserve notes, now limited to larger denominations, are backed by gold and government obligations.

Reserves for the whole country are estimated at 4,480,702, 1000 barrels, up only 307,133,000 over the 4,173,569,000 estimated at year-end of 1961—about 15 months' production.

Only a few days earlier, New York's Andy Hebenton was asked how the Rangers handled Howe.

"We don't usually." Hebenton said wryly, "But Camille Hears, has done better than anybody else."

Since Camille doesn't weight more than 150 even after consuming three pizza ples, it would seem that Howe could fling him up into the 33rd row any time he pleased.

"I guess Howe could," agreed Hebenton. "Except that Henry doesn't take a run at him. He just flits in and out,

A. "He came too high."

Q. "What did he want, apart from the Empress Hotel, the Parliament Buildings and the Tally-Ho?"

A. "$100 per game. Guaranteed. Even if he played only game and then was injured he still wanted $3,200 for Q. "Is a healthy Bionda worth $100 per?"

Q. "Is a healthy Bionda worth $100 per?"

A. "A lot of factors enter into it. If he plays his best... if the team he's with gets hot. Paying him, though, isn't just a question of getting another 125 paid customers.
Out of the gross receipts, 12½ per cent goes to the league, 25 per cent to the visiting team (30 per cent if they win);
and, 33½ per cent goes to the Arena."

Q. "What were you prepared to offer Bionda?"

A "$25 per night."

A. "$25 per night."
And that, friends, is why Jack Bionda will be playing this year for New Westminster which just happens to be on good terms with a friendly brewery where the money vs like beer on Saturday night.

Minister Must Control Military

By DAVE McINTOSH
OTTAWA (CP)—The Liberals are looking for a hardrock defence minister for any government they form.

Many Liberals want a tough cookie to "shake out" the defence department and "shoot down" any senior officer who steps out of line on policy.

Some Liberals say recent history shows a defence minister must lay down the law in the department in his first 10 days or be "captured" by the military.

The former Liberal administration was embarrassed by the minister of the defence buildup and knows the department inside out.

Moreover, he's a hardrock.

tration was embarrassed by public statements by Lt.-Gen. Guy Simonds, then chief of the general staff, advocating national selective service, never fired him.

The Liberals say they won't tolerate again such public disagreements by the military with agreements by the military with government policy.

Some military officers say the defence department hasn't had a shaking up since the post-war defence buildup started in 1950 and that it needs one.

They and that the department sometimes gets bogged down in liamentary pension fund—only he wishes, he can qualify by a provincial government hosalmost endless committee meetings and that often new, bright ideas are rejected by officers interested mainly in the status pension payments.

Only two of them External for a pension pain. But it is pension plan. But it is Holidays are dandy and I'm all for them. But the return never fails to be disillusioning.

The jobs left undone haven't evaporated as I hoped they would. Someone has pinched my chair. The paragraphing dingus still doesn't work on my typewriter, the mail consists of a manuscript with accompanying letter from a housewife who wants to write fiction, and at home the grass needs cutting.

To escape this despairful the crown. It was a case of mood, let me report that we came back from up-Island ith a fine sack of oysters, fresh-plucked trillium packed in moss, and a cut-throat trout too big for Win's largest frying-pan.

We also brought down a are a sound investment. If the washboard north of Menzies Bay, we mightn't have found the trillium or gathered the oysters, or eaught the trout.

We hadn't intended to go fishing this trip. It just happened that the gear was in the trunk, and that the waiter in the Marina Hotel, a jog south of Campbell River, has a brother-in-law who does a lot of fishing.

We talked election for a while-last week nobody was discussing much else except the mixed-up weather—then I asked about trout pros-

Many April Showers— Gifts for Many Brides By PENNY SAVER

June may be losing in popularity as the favorite month for weddings, but April and May are still holding their own. This means that any time during the weeks to come you may find yourself wandering around looking for shower and may find yourself wandering around looking for shower and wedding gifts.

Well, it just so happens that Penny is able to help you out. She had the good fortune to come across a whole host of inexpensive gifts this morning.

Salad servers with teak handles are only $1.50 and they never go amiss. A Danish crystal bud vase, at the same price, is always something every young bride likes to have on hand for the occasional rose brought home by hubby at the end of day.

Since many brides nowadays go on working they have very little time for arranging flowers or fresh centrepieces. So Penny can't help thinking how nice it would be to give artificial fruit for a shower gift.

The bowls of fruit and vegetables Penny saw were most attractive but expensive if a bride had to buy for herself. Individually the prices were almost infinitesimal, ranging between a dollar and $3.95.

It might be rather fun to plan a fruit shower and each guest bring either an apple, a bunch of blackberries, a banana, a cluster of strawberries or some citrus fruit. The bowl? There are many of these to choose from in the same store as the fruit. And so the bride's first centrepiece would be arranged.

One wedding present with which you can't go wrong is coffee cups, and particularly if you buy the ones Penny saw. They are neither demitasse hor mugs. They are double demitasse. The design is Elizabethan with a modern look. Cups and saucers of white English bone china have a narrow band of colored trim. Individually the price is two dollars or you can buy a set of six for $11.50.

Have you wedding and shower gifts on your list? Phone Penny at 382-3131.

New healing preparation works 3 ways at once to help clear up the symptoms of PSORIASIS

Clinically tested. Your money back if TEGRIN does not give relief. Psoriasis can leave your skin so crusty and scaly you feel embarrassed, self conscious, ill at ease. But now, there is new help for psoriasis sufferers — a new clinically tested healing preparation called TEGRIN.*

Unique triple-action cream

TEGRIN is an efficient cream you can purchase at all drug counters. So easy and pleasant to use — even on the scalp — with no lingering medical smell or stain. And it's effective because it works three ways

1. Scale removal and itch control — the use of TEGRIN helps to relieve itching promptly; scales and crust "pile-ups" are loosened and come

Healing of the skin – the soothing action of TEGRIN speeds improvement by encouraging the natural ability of the skin tissue to recover and heal itself.

3. Prevention of recurrent scales — timely re-application of TEGRIN provides a special preventive action that opposes and helps block off the formation of new scales. Dramatic clearing reported parts of the U.S.? The answer is NO. How many teachers in Canada are brave enough to recommend Catcher in the Rye by J. D. Salinger for their senior students?

In fact, a teen-ager just can't avoid being mixed up in every book controversy that comes along. How many times have you heard an adult say, "It's fine for me to read this book—but what if the teen-agers see it?"

Gerald Waring ... REPORTING

OTTAWA - While we await announcement of the military vote and a prospective increase of two or three in the Liberal strength in the new Commons, it seems clear that no matter how John Diesenbaker twists and turns he cannot long cling to the prime ministership.

He is entitled to call Parliament together as quickly as possible and seek a vote of confidence. He cites the precedent of 1925. But he overlooks the more recent precedent of 1957, when Prime Minister St. Laurent resigned in circumstances identical with those facing Mr. Diefenbaker today.

Besides, the similarity between 1925 and 1963 is more apparent than real. While Mackenzie King had only 101 members fol-lowing the 1925 election, compared with Meighen's 116 Tories, the third party of that day, the Progressives, had elected 24. The Progressives had supported King's minority Liberal government from 1921 to 1925, so

King really had a plurality.

Diefenbaker has no neo-Progressive group at his beck. The Socreds deserted him 5. Socred Leader Thompson has said he will not support Diefenbaker. And anyway, the combined Tory and Socred strength is a baker's dozen short of a majority, and short' even of the Liberal plurality.

Pearson, on the other hand, appears likely to be able to command a House majority on the strength of the pre-election pledge of NDP Leader Tommy Douglas to support a government based on a Commons plurality.

Practically speaking that meant the NDP would prevent the precipitate defeat of a Conservative or Liberal minority govern-

It is a hard blow to the NDP to find itself having to come to the aid of the Liberals rather than the Conservatives. The Tories are only political foes, but the Liberals are mortal enemies. The only hope for the NDP ever to achieve political power lies in the destruction of the Liberal Party.

But NDP parliamentarians are tradi-tionally among the most responsible in the House. They could scarcely join with the Socreds to keep Diefenbaker in office, after his crushing defeat and after their own denunciations of his policies and performance. However wryly, they must subordinate partisan interest to national interest. This will be made somewhat easier by knowledge that any party that lightly precipitates another election in the near future by defeating the Pearson govern. future by defeating the Pearson govern-ment will reap the wrath of an electionsurfeited public.

Pearson and Douglas must now confer, A modus vivendi must be agreed upon. The great divisive issue between Grits and socialists, the question of nuclear arms, must be attacked frontally. While the kind must be attacked frontally. While the kind of arms the services get is an executive decision, not requiring legislation, a nuclear treaty with the U.S. would require parliamentary ratification. And the question of warheads could be made the basis of a no-confidence motion by the opposition.

This is probably the only issue on the political horizon on which the NDP could not support the Grits. But among shattered Tories and western Socreds there likely would be enough support for the Liberals' nuclear policy to prevent the government's nuclear policy to prevent the government's defeat—especially with another election as the fruit of such defeat.

stems from the prospect that slang, idioms, dialects, colloquialisms and other corruptives will dilute and contort the meaning of words to the point that they lose their power of communication.

I am not enough of a West scholar to know whether such a threat actually exists. All I know is that two fellows met on the street the other day and the following conversation ensued:

"You don't look so good, Harry."

"I don't feel so good, Sam."

"What seems to be the trouble?" "I'm afraid I played the fool last night." "You overindulged, did you? Had a drop too much?"

"Yes, I was intemperate. I hit the sauce too hard."

"You were bending your elbow and you got a little too well oiled. Is that it, Harry?" "I sat down to wet my whistle and the next thing I knew I was feeling no pain." "In other words, you tied one on. You started out to lift a few and you ended up three sheets to the wind."

"Right, Sam. I was really sailing. I was

"What you mean is, you were high. Or were you tight?"

"Both, Sam. I was high as a kite and tight as a tick."

"In that case, you must have been more than tipsy. You must have been stewed."

"I was pie-eyed. I was blotto. I was stiff, bombed, soused, ossified, barrelled and gassed." "Were you out like a light?"
"No, but I was lit. Lit up like a church."
The two friends parted at this point and

HGHWAY PROBE CONTINUES REMOTHER OFF CAPE COD Oil Slick, Debris

Found in Area

WASHINGTON (AP) - Admiral George W. Anderson, chief of United States naval operations, announced today that "very reluctantly I have come to the conclusion that the submarine Thresher has indeed been lost."

Anderson spoke at a press conference more than 25 hours after the nuclear-powered sub-marine carrying 129 persons-officers and men and civilians —was lost to contact some 220 officers and men and civilians

Anderson said two main factors influenced his judgment:

The salvage vessel Recovery followed an oil slick detected Wednesday and found bits of cork used in internal construc-tion of submarines. Even if there had been a communica-tions failure or the Thresher had gotten out of position in re-lation to its escort ship, the Skylark, "surely in the interim
